DGA Action has filed amendments to our 2012 July, August and September monthly filings to amend certain occupation and employer identification information that was not considered acceptable by the reports analyst.

DGA Action exercises "best efforts" to obtain and disclose the identification of all individuals who contribute in excess of $200 in a calendar year. This identification for an individual includes their full name, complete mailing address, occupation, and name of employer.

DGA Action believed that the information provided by the donors who identified themselves as "Self-Employed" was adequate. First, the information was provided by the donor in response to the original solicitation at the time they made contributions using DGA Action's contribution form. Second, DGA Action reasonably believed that individuals who identified themselves as "self-employed" and with occupations in sales, consulting, entrepreneur activities, and retail met the information identification requirement.

DGA Action uses the occupation / employer phrase "N/A / N/A" only for those donors who provide personal information clearly indicating that they do not have an occupation or employer. For example, "N/A / N/A" is used when a donor provides the following information: "not employed," "none", "unemployed", "social security", or "disabled".

The amendments now show either the standardized "Not Employed" or the information provided by the donor

At the analyst's request, DGA Action has sent follow-up requests for this information. The request clearly asks for the missing information, without soliciting a contribution, and informs the contributor of the requirements of federal law for the reporting of such information. DGA Action has included self-addressed and stamp envelopes in the follow-up requests.

DGA Action will amend its report if a more detailed description is received from the donors.
